Stenographer Caught Conversation "On the Fly"-Inside Facts of Holdup.

tional Bank messengers in Trinity place on February 15 was a witness yesterday afternoon at the trial of Geno Montani, the taxicab chauffeur, before Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. The stenographer, John J. O'Connell, told of the conversation he to the Mr. Van Tine and his wife, a sister of Cal. Allen's estate so he can turn this trust found over to me. I suggest Thomas H. Van Tine, who was named by Col. Allen as executor in two of his wills."

Counsel for the Allen will contestants objected on the ground that it is charged that Mr. Van Tine and his wife, a sister of Cal. Allen's had heard from memory, refreshing his of Col. Allen, exerted undue influence and memory from the transcript of the notes brought about the execution of the will, he had taken. Montani and Collins, who he had taken. Montani and Collins, who declaring that Col. Allen did not wish the nieces to share in the estate. Surrothe talking, with Scotty Lamb, one of the minor characters in the holdup, putting in a word now and then. The men were in separate cells, so they had to shout to be heard by each other.

Collins, or Kinsman, was talking when the stenographer began taking down what was said. Collins said that if he were married he never would be mixed up in a deal like this and that if he got away with this he never would pull off another deal. "Only for Dutch," he said, "I don't think it would be so bad with us," and added that when Dutch had "got in there he went out of his head." Montani agreed that Dutch was a "rat," and to Collins's compliment about the way he threaded his way with the speeding automobile replied, "I know how to handle a car."

Collins said that it was a good thing "they did not give me that gun that morning or I would have been over the river. You know that morning they wanted me to shoot you in the leg. I said nothing doing. They would have heard that "Certainly would," Montani replied, then sighed, "only for Jess," referring to Albrozzo, who has confessed to his part in the crime. Scotty put in with: "If I had him outside I would put a bullet in him!" Collins, apparently not greatly confident of Scotty's prowess, replied, "Don't make me laugh!" Collins asked Montani how he "came off" in the line of money. "I'm rotten with it," Montani replied, adding that he had "some good commented, and, turning to Scotty, asked, "Can't you and I frame up some story against Jess for Montani?"

Scotty replied that he was "going to rap one man and that was Jess." Collins said that he "had all the boxing commissioners" and believed they would get him "the best." He hoped he might get off with Elmira.

Colins went on to say that it was a wonder they were not "all dropped right there" when Montani "drove down to the corner."

Colins went on to say that it we a wonder they were not "all dropped right there" when Montani "drove down to the corner." When Montani "drove down to the corner." Did we pass any cops?" asked Montani. "That's all I could see on every corner." Collins replied.

Returning to the matter of getting out of the scrape, Montani said he expected to have a bunch of men to help him out and explained that he referred to the Masons, to which Collins replied, "That's a good order to have," and said his "old man" belonged to toat order.

Collins thought also that if they had some nitroglycerine they could blow the lock off the cell door.

Collins said he wished they had "killed all the cops of the police force before we did it," and added, "They are the worst I ever want to mee.. They are smiling when they are talking to you and two minutes before they leave you they would paste you in the eye for nothing. Good fellows? Say, they would give you two nickels for a dime any time. Did one of them take a crack at you?" Montani replied "No."

Collins returned to the matter of the robbery. "Up in the Grand Central proceedings and the Brighton police court

Collins returned to the matter of the robbery. "Up in the Grand Central you should see what a bunch got me." he said. "I bet there was thirty. They are rats, the whole lot." He added that he expected the detective who arrested him was "a lieutenant now."

"What made a lieutenant for the

"Oh, my dear boy!" was Montani's reply.

Collins asked Montani if he would "do it over again" if they "had the right bunch." Montani said he would not and added that he took the biggest risk of

Another Stair for Times Square Subway

Owing to the increase of traffic at the Times Square station of the subway the Times Square station of the subway the Public Service Commission has decided to build another stairway. The new stair will descend from a point on the south side of Forty-second street just west of Broadway and will lead immediately to the southbound platform, which is connected by underground passageway with the northbound platform.

BOY'S TRUST FUND TIED UP.

George Brinkerhoff in Destitution Through Peculiar Circumstances.

Surrogate Fowler was informed yes Surrogate Fowler was informed yesterday that Gorge Brinkerhoff, the thirteen-year-old son of George C. Brinkerhoff, who was a well to do sugar planter and at one time Consul-General at Havana, Cuba, is in want in spite of a trust fund of $40,000 left for him by his father, because of the Equitable Building fire, the death of Col. Ethan Allen, who was trustee of the fund, and ALL SORRY FOR MONTANI Allen, who was trustee of the fund, and the contest of Col. Allen's will.

MAYOR FINDS FUN IN ESSEX MARKET COURT

Gaynor Chuckles When Prisoner Says Some One Must Have Put Revolver in Pocket.

Mayor Gaynor, who has been inspecting the police courts piecemeal, put in two hours yesterday morning in the Essex Market court.

Real Mayors are a curiosity on the East Side and when the tip got out that his Honor was coming there was a rush for seats in the court room.

Joe Levy, Duke of Essex street; Simon Steingut, the Mayor of Second avenue; Alderman Max Levine, Assemblyman Aaron J. Levy and other celebrities planted themselves in the front row.

Mayor Gaynor arrived about 10 o'clock accompanied by Lieut. Kennell.

Some of the cases seemed to interest the Mayor very much. One of the first examination cases was that of the striking bakers, fourteen of whom were arrested people" behind him.
"I don't see how you figure it at all when you know these guys are throwing and three policemen with chairs. the other day in a hall at 387 Grand street after they had assaluted a master baker

"I'm blessed if I know," Montani replied.
He added that if he got out he was "going to work and give up business entirely.

"I'm blessed if I know," Montani replied.
The defendants were charged with felonious assault.

lonious assault.

It was thought by some that Mayor Gaynor had come to court especially to hear this case. But he made no comments on it and Magistrate Murphy said later that he thought the Mayor had no particular interest in any specific case.

A case that interested the Mayor was that of Joseph Battista, a laborer from Massena Springs, N. Y., who was arrested by Detective Craretta at Grand and Mulberry streets with a pistol in his hip pocket. He was charged with carrying concealed weapons.

appeared in the Brighton police court this morning to answer a charge of assault and battery on Edward Langley Thurston, a music teacher.

Thurston charged that on March 6 he "What, made a lieutenant for the arrest of you?" Montani asked.
"He must have been made something," replied Collins. "Did they cross-question Gaynor, son of Mayor Gaynor, and was Gaynor, son of Mayor Gaynor, and was Gaynor, son of Mayor Gaynor, and was ordered from the house by her with a threat to shoot him. On leaving the building he was met by Gammons, who assaulted him.

Dr. Frederick H. Cleaves, U. S. N., attached to the United States marine hospital at Chelsea, and his wife testified that they had seen the assault from the windows of their apartment and characterized it as a "vicious, cowardly and brutal attack."

Judge Barnard found Gammons guilty and imposed a fine of $25. The defendant appealed. A stay of sentence was granted until Monday to enable Gammons to furnish $200 surety.

"I tell you the truth, I don't know."

Montani replied.

The day's session began with the crossexamination of Collins, or Kinsman George Roesch, Montani's lawyer, brought out that the taxicab passed three policemen in one block while the messengers were being beaten inside.

Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty told of his conversations with Montani at Police Headquarters and of Montani's insistence upon his original story. Lieut. Dominick Riley followed the Deputy Commissioner and told of hearing Kinsman and Montani talking over the crime in their cells. Detective Sergeant Edward S. Boyle also overheard some of the conversations of the prisoners.

The District Attorney rested his case yesterday afternoon. Montani will take the stand this morning in his own defence. Lawyer Roesch said that he would call only two or three other witnesses. It is expected the case will go to the jury this afternoon. of a stable on a threat of poisoning his horses.

They are Joe Trouvlinsky, alias "Yaskey Nigg er; Joe Lieberman, alias Sleepy Joe, and Hyman Avnett. They were each held in $5,000 bail for examination this morning by Magistrate House.

Max Levine is the owner of the stable, which is at 65 Rugters street.

Thomas F. Freel, superintendent of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was the man who first set the police upon the "Yiddish Camorra."

Macy's is replete to-day with every spring furnishing needful

As Saturday is the best day for husbands and wives to come and select such important articles as new summer furniture, hangings and cretonnes, as well as other home furnishings, we have prepared some better-than-usual values in the home furnishing lines for to-

New Summer Furniture An Exhibition Remarkable for Its Completeness

Probably the finest display of hand-made reed and willow furniture we have ever made.

A Pergola has been built right through the fourth floor from 34th to 35th St. Along this 200 feet are arranged the very newest styles in Summer Suites. Arm Chairs, Magazine Stands, Desk Trays, Tables of all sizes, Tea Wagons,

Tea Tables. Couches, Lamps, Porch Rockers andchairs,

Book Racks, Davenport Swings, Garden Benches, wood frames with double Hammock Couches, cane seats and back in Carpet and Canvas Camp all sizes. Chairs and Stools.

Included are the new willow and reed lamps which we have in many sizes and styles. We doubt if they are to be had elsewhere in the city. We have them both for kerosene and electric lights in all heights suitable for placing on the table or for porch or hall. Note

Our assortment of willow pedestals for flower pots or urns is worthy of notice.

Any of this furniture will be stained as desired. Can be stained in almost any color and the cost is very slight.

In case you desire something absolutely unique, we will submit a sketch according to your instructions, or on the other hand will copy any design which you may submit.

We make a specialty of arranging entire room furnishings in willow and reed to match and will submit photos of drawings of such an interior upon request.

Right at the entrance to our display on the 34th St. side you will find some pieces of imported porch and lawn furniture absolutely unique in New York. There is but one of a kind of each of these

Imported Cretonnes at 1/2 This means at about one-half the cost of importing them to this country

Consists of English, French and Austrian Prints

The designs are chiefly bright chintz colorings, but there are a number of heavier green and red patterns suitable for the more quiet rooms. Conspicuous among the patterns is an unusual flower design in shades of dark green. A mauve smudge design and a dark red smudge design are also unusually attractive, but it is impossible to do justice to the individual patterns. It can only be said that there are fruit, flower, tapestry and geometrical patterns covering practically every color combination.

Some of the lower priced ones are printed on both sides so as to be suitable for hangings without the necessity for lining.

All are washable.

"NORTH STAR" REFRIGERATORS Two carloads of this superior brand, of which we have the sole New York distribution, have just been received.

"North Star" Refrigerators are conspicuous for their economy of ice consumption. This, in turn, is due to the number of walls, seven in number, which protect the ice. These walls are:

Wall No. 1-Exterior Case of Ash or Oak | Wall No. 4-Granulated Cork. Wall No. 2—Dead Air Space.
Wall No. 3—Insulating Sheathing of Heavy Paper.

Wall No. 6—One-half in. Ash Board.
Wall No. 7—Lining of Iron or Zinc.

"North Star" Refrigerators are conspicuous for the dryness of their interiors. Sulphur Matches, which are most easily affected by damp, may be placed for 24 hours inside of the food chamber and when taken out will light as well as when they were placed in the chamber. There is prehaps no other refrigerator on the market where the fruit chamber is as dry as in the "North Star" Refrigerator.

"North Star" Refrigerators are conspicuous for the purity of the air in the food chamber. This is accomplished by a current of water which continually flows through the bottom of this chamber carrying off all impurities.

"North Star" Refrigerators with doors on side for putting in the "North Star" Ice Chests. Price $17.89 to $92.84 "Success" Galvanized Steel Refrigerators with removable sani-tary ice chamber. Enamel lined. Ice capacity 60 to 225 lbs.
